

Genetics

Invertebrate Life Functions Puzzle

Name:

Period:

1. any part of a larger structure in an animal, separated into sections
2. type of asexual reproduction when a new organism develops by pinching off of the parent organism
3. animals with this have blood that moves through open spaces in their body
4. animals with this have blood that moves through closed loops of tubes in their body
5. type of asexual reproduction when parts break off of the parent organism, then develop into an identical organism
6. describes the group of organs that controls all of the functions of the body using electrical signals
7. a specialized life cycle that includes a rapid change in appearance and structure of the immature organism when it becomes an adult
8. fluid inside the circulatory system; vampires think it is yummy
9. describes the group of organs that gets rid of extra water and waste from the organism's body
10. describes a body that can be divided into two matching parts by drawing a line down the center of the organism; you have this
11. a tube inside an organism's body used for respiration (breathing)
12. the front end of an organism's digestive tract
13. collections of tissues that collect information from inside and outside the body of an organism
14. control center of the nervous system; zombies want to eat it
15. process by which an organism can get rid of its exoskeleton; you can't do this because your skeleton is internal

